UNITED TRUCK DRIVING SCHOOL

United Truck Driving School, with three Southern California locations, has been training the nation's truck drivers since 1978. We are licensed by the Bureau of Private Post Secondary Schools in the State of California and are one of only a handful of nationally accredited truck driving schools, accredited by the Accrediting Commission of Career Schools and Colleges of Technology (ACCSCT). Our goal with every student is to provide top-notch training in a format and time frame that makes it possible to receive a commercial license and enter the work force as a professional truck or bus driver in as little as 4 weeks. New classes start every two weeks.

JOBS

Our students are job ready and employable with job offers waiting by the time they graduate. Truck drivers are in high demand. Major long haul truck companies recruit directly from our classrooms. Local truck companies regularly seek to hire our graduates. Students with a clean background who submit job applications during their training with United Truck Driving School will be able to start a job within days of completion of our program. If you have issues with your driving record or have a criminal record, please feel free to discuss your employment possibilities with one of our admissions representatives. They will be able to help you understand that although not all truck companies will be able to hire you due to insurance restriction there are still positions in the industry for serious job seekers.
